أحيك يا فرحات حيك للشعب

By Farhat Othman December 5, 2012 | No comments

في ذكرى استشهاده الزعيم المناضل فرحات حشاد، لعل خير تحية لروحه هي إعادة نشر مقالته الرائعة التي صرّح فيها بحبه لهذا الشعب التونسي العظيم؛ وقد نشرت بصحيفة الحرية في عددها الصادر يوم 21 ديسمبر 1951. ذلك قبل ما يناهز سنة من اغتياله. فمّا، هذا له من شع

Uganda

“As a journalist in Uganda, where there is partial press freedom, you only exercise it when you’re not threatening top power, blogs are important for journalists to air their views in a media environment that is easily controlled by government, which is the reason why I decided to run a blog.”

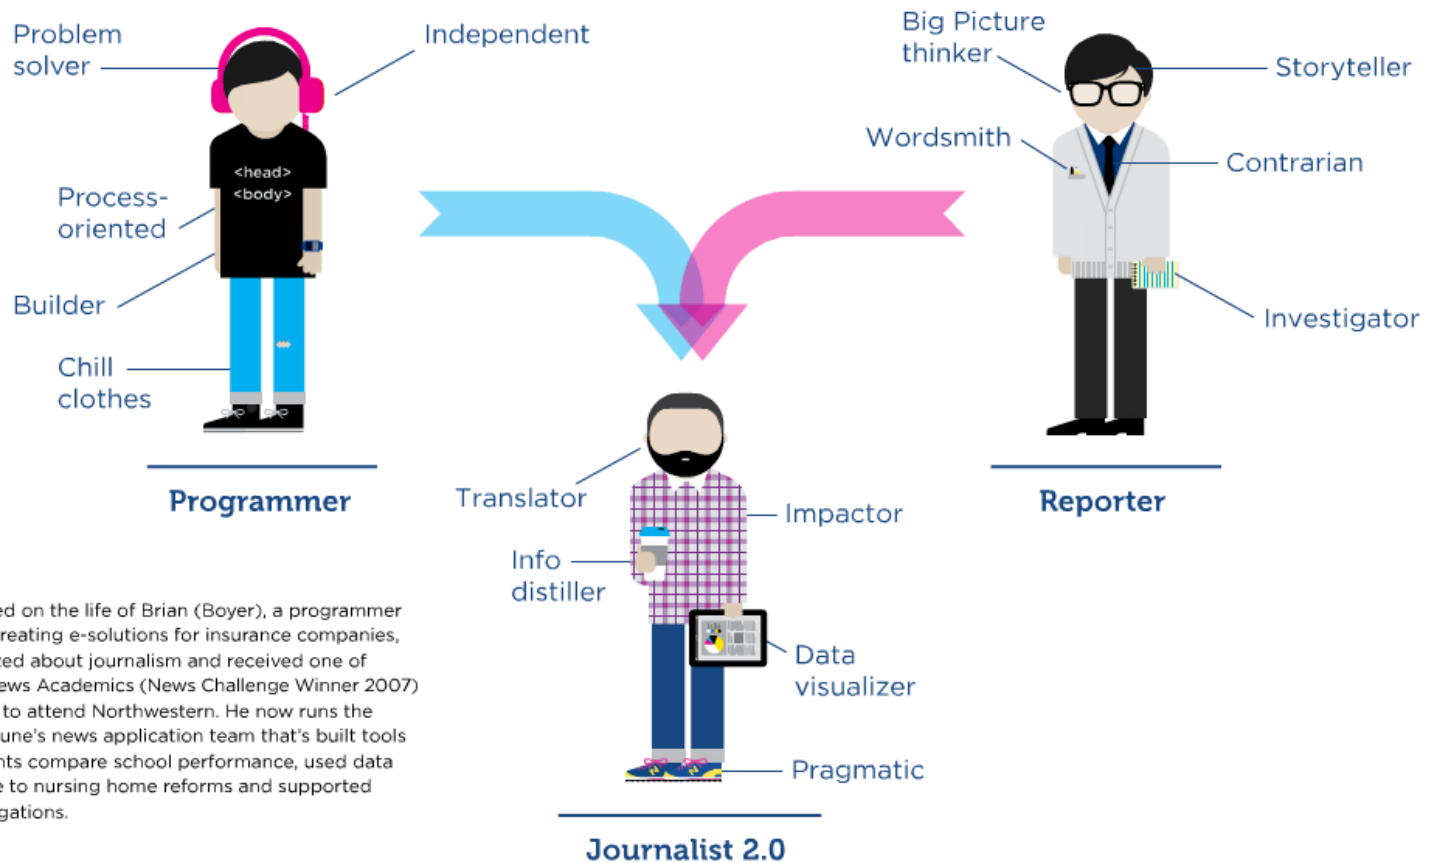

Rosebelle Kagumire

Rosebelle Kagumire, experienced Ugandan Journalist, which won the best Journalist blogger English category at the Panos hosted competition in 2009.

The Hacker Journalist

Many of the field-building projects are focused on creating graduates with a new hybrid set of skills required to advance the future of news and information.*

* Loosely based on the life of Brian (Boyer), a programmer bored with creating e-solutions for insurance companies, who got jazzed about journalism and received one of the Digital News Academics (News Challenge Winner 2007) scholarships to attend Northwestern. He now runs the Chicago Tribune's news application team that's built tools to help parents compare school performance, used data to contribute to nursing home reforms and supported other investigations.

Eskinder Nega

*“Freedom is partial to no race.
Freedom has no religion.
Freedom favors no ethnicity.
Freedom discriminates not between rich and poor countries. Inevitably freedom will overwhelm Ethiopia.”*

-Eskinder Nega, Sept. 9, 2011, five days before his arrest.
